Swindoll: So often, when facing our own giants, we forget what we ought to remember and we remember what we ought to _____. We remember our defeats and we forget the victories. Most of us can recite the failures of our lives in vivid detail, but we're hard-pressed to name the specific, remarkable victories God has pulled off in our past. Not so with David! He says, "You know why I can fight Goliath, Saul? Because the same God who gave me power over a lion and a bear will give me power over Goliath. It is God who will empower me...so just let me at him."

And Saul said unto David, Go, and the LORD be with thee.

Saul--giving all these pious clichés to this young man

1 Sam 17:38-39

Pink: But David quickly perceived that such was unsuited to him: the one who has much to do with God in secret cannot employ worldly means and methods in public; the man of faith has no use for carnal weapons. Such things as ecclesiastical _____, dress, ritualistic _____, which are imposing to the eye of the natural man, are but bubbles and baubles to the spiritual.

He _____ (I am going to kill you and leave your carcass here for the birds and the wild animals to eat).

Swindoll: Intimidation. That's our _____ battle when we face giants. When they intimidate us, we get tongue-tied. Our thoughts get confused. We forget how to pray. We focus on the odds against us. We forget whom we represent, and we stand there with our knees knocking. I wonder what God must think, when all the while He has promised us, "My power is available. There's no one on this earth greater, You trust Me."

David's focus? Not on the _____!

His eyes were on the _____.

1 Sam 17:45-47

A few years passed between the time David played before Saul and _____.
David may have been 16-18 years old.

Dr. W.M. Thomson, The Land and the Book: We do not know how long a period intervened between the return of David to his father's house, and his appearance before the king on the morning of the duel with Goliath. If it were two or three years, it is possible that David had, in the meanwhile, suddenly shot up from boyhood to youth, tall and robust, and his personal appearance might have so changed as to bear little resemblance to the ruddy lad who played skillfully on the harp. It is a fact that lads of this country, particularly of the higher classes, are often very fair, full and handsome until about 14 yrs of age. During the next two or three years, a surprising change takes place. They not only spring into full-grown manhood as if by magic, but all their former beauty disappears; their complexion becomes dark, their features harsh and angular, and the whole expression of countenance, stern and even disagreeable...
